Raising and Teaching Boys

Location:
The Children's Trust
3150 SW 3rd
Coral Way, Fl.
33129

Boys come in all sizes and shapes and have a variety of personalities, skills and challenges. However boys in our society and in families are more often treated and spoken to based on preconceived ideas about gender, race and culture specific expectations which limit their ability to develop socially and emotionally. Identifying individual boy's skills, capabilities, strengths and temperaments early on will maximize his ability to learn, love and develop social skills.

The training will focus on:

1. Identify stereotypes that dwarf emotional, social and educational growth in boys as a result of being profiled by race, gender, culture, lifestyle and academic labeling.
2. Identify unmet services for boys affecting their well-being.
3. Empower parents/educator of boys to raise and teach them to be contributing members of society.
